Devoted to the Up-Building of Gleichen and the Development of the District Generally

Year VI., No. 35.

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1912.

$1.50 Per Year

TOWN COUNCIL.

At the Town Council meeting on Friday evening, there were present with Mayor Bray in the chair, Councilors James, Henderson, Service and Griesbach, the two later passing quite amiably the previous minutes.

Mr. Fred Brosseau addressed the Council, during which address he pointed out that he thought the water rate of the Palace Hotel was extremely high, being $79.45, and asked that this be considered. He also stated that he thought the license fee of $15 and $10 too high for the Opera house. He pointed out during the past year they only had eleven shows and had really made nothing out of them. They were willing to pay $100 a year for license as they had done in the past but if they had to pay $15 each night they could not accept any more contracts. One of the recent theatrical troupes they were obliged to advance $17 to assist them to reach Calgary. Thus it would pay better to use the hall for moving pictures, roller skating, etc.

Ald. James and Service moved that the matter of adjusting the water rate with the Palace Hotel be taken up by the council.

The question of the license for the Opera House being discussed it was decided the by-law would have to be amended and the necessary legal formalities complied with before any reduction could be made. It was shown the previous arrangements with the Opera House had been made before the town was incorporated.

Several members of the Hockey club having interviewed the council, in compliance with their request Ald. Service and Griesbach carried that the club be allowed the loan of the old fire hall, which it was explained could easily be moved to the new skating rink on skids. It was stated that an offer to rent and another to purchase the building had recently been rejected.

The hockey boys also wanted to arrange for water from the town for the rink, but after some discussion this was left over as it was thought the club might make better arrangements with J.W. Burr's barn as it was close to the rink.

Ald. Henderson and James carried that the following accounts be paid:-

Alberta Transfer .....	$27.08
A. R. Yates .....	5.75
C.C. Snowdon .....	9.45
A. Whiteley .....	16.68
F. C. Viger .....	17.40
Gleichen Trading Co. ....	2.45
E. P. Tostevin .....	4.50
General Supplies, Ltd. ....	6.90
W. Stuart & Co. ....	2.16
Crown Lumber Co. ....	85.25

Ald. Service and Griesbach moved that the secretary draft a by-law appointing J. T. Johnston returning officer for the coming election.

Ald. Service and James carried that the annual ratepayers' meeting be held in the Town Hall on Nov. 25th at 8 p.m.

Ald. Service successfully moved that the nominations for town officers and school trustees be held in the Town Hall on Dec. 2nd, from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

Instructions were given to have a by-law prepared in accordance with the provincial statutes whereby only ratepayers who have paid their taxes will be entitled to vote at the municipal election.

Ald. Service and James carried that the meeting adjourn.

An Institute meeting of the Gleichen District Agricultural Association will be held in the Town Hall on Saturday, Nov. 23, at 8 o'clock.

The ideal threshing weather continues, but there is hardly five per cent left, most of which is stacked.

222,494 BU. GRAIN SOLD SO FAR

There can now be no dispute as to the usefulness of the Gleichen and District Board of Trade and all that name implies.

Right after the appearance of the Call last week the executive of the Board got busy and sent out the following message:

Gleichen, Alberta., Nov. 7th 1912.
To A. Price,
General Superintendent C.P.R. Car Service,
Calgary, Alta.

Owing to great amount of grain in district a large part is unprotected, which will damage should bad weather set in. The Board of Trade petitions you to place more cars at the disposal of the district. Present orders are for 125 cars in advance.

(Signed) Gleichen and District Board of Trade.

The same afternoon—Nov. 7th—four cars arrived and during the night nine more, three of which were sent on to Stobart to relieve the situation there.

The following day Secretary Johnston received the following reply:

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 8th, 1912.
Gleichen and District Board of Trade,
Gleichen, Alta.

Your wire Nov. 7. Will endeavor to increase supply of cars for grain loading at Gleichen. Your organization might be of great assistance to us if you will induce shippers and consignees at Gleichen to load and unload cars more promptly. If you can see your way to do this present this telegram to our agent, who will give you information about the following cars: 170364, 50330, 68712, 84477, 7085, File A.

(Signed) A. Price

When the CALL man visited the Alberta Pacific Elevator yesterday morning the manager said he had shipped nine cars of wheat the past week, five of which were No. 2 Northern and four No. 3, as well as a car of No. 3 barley. Questioned as to car shortage he said he believed the Board of Trade had resulted in much good. In fact he was receiving two cars a day more than he needed, which, of course went to the disposal of those next on the list. He said he had plenty of room for grain. But when asked, "for storage?" he shook his head and said, "Not for storage. We are endeavoring to keep our elevator clear."

At the Imperial the manager said he had shipped eight cars of wheat and two of oats and had taken in just about the same amount during the week. Questioned as to cars he said:-

"We have plenty of cars, but our big difficulty is to get them placed. We are willing to work day and night to load cars, but we simply cannot load unless the cars are placed. Look out the window and see the line of farmers ready to unload here. They are waiting until we can get a car to fill and then we can let them unload. We can fill a car in two hours and a-half, but what can we do when others take from 12 to 24 hours to load a car and hold the track ahead of us. We are willing to work day and night. All we ask is the opportunity to fill our cars."

At the Sunny Belt Elevator the manager was busy receiving wheat and had a long line of grain wagons outside so had little time to talk, but by persistent efforts it was learned he had shipped out about six carloads of wheat and had taken in about 1000 bushels. He heard the Board of Trade was doing good work in obtaining cars, but was not disposed to discuss the car situation as he really was very busy at the moment.

The track shipments for the week amounted to five carloads, consisting of 4000 bushels of oats and 3000 bushels of wheat.

	PAST WEEK	TOTAL TO DATE
Wheat	25,194	163,794
Oats	7,500	38,400
Barley	1,400	15,400
Flax	-	4,900

Total bushels for week 34,094 Total to date 222,494

A full stomach thinks not of the future but lives on the repast.

Now is the time to reserve space in the CALL's special number.

A few judicious lies can bring a whole lot of happiness into the world. Tell the thin girl that she is gaining in weight; tell the fat girl that she is losing flesh and tell the homely girl that she has wonderful eyes.

There is nothing mean in a woman's makeup. After a man has apologized for something he didn't do she will always admit that she was wrong.

$1.50 OFFERED FOR MARQUIS WHEAT

Frank Daw who was the man who was particularly instrumental in bringing Marquis wheat into the Gleichen district, having bought a carload last spring and after supplying his own needs induced many other farmers to purchase it in small quantities, informs the CALL that he has been offered $1.50 per bushel for all the seed he can spare.

This offer is very pleasing to Mr. Daw in view of the difficulties he had to contend with to induce his friends to try this new wheat.

Mr. Daw says that he has been offered $1.50 for 300 bushels, but he has already disposed of 1000 bushels and cannot spare the full amount and keep enough seed for his own use. The offer was made to him by the Natural Resource Department by the C.P.R.

When seen Mr. Daw was not prepared to make a detailed statement of his Marquis, but said it averaged from 34 to 47 bushels per acre and that when he had time and was through this busy season he would be pleased to give the CALL a statement of his crop.

A very pretty wedding took place near Chendale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyons on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 6th, when, in the presence of relatives and intimate friends, their daughter Ella Isabel, became the bride of Chester Woods Barber of Langdon. Rev. G. H. Barrett of Knox Presbyterian Church, Langdon performed the ceremony.

Game Warden Wm. Service succeeded in making his first conviction nearly two weeks ago, when he had a young man fined $10 and costs amounting to about $17, for shooting prairie chicken on Sept. 25th close to Red Deer River. It appears that the man was shooting on that date and was advised by a farmer on whose land he was at the time that he was not acting in accordance with the law, but refusing to accept the kindly offered advice continued to shoot and the farmer laid the complaint. This necessitated a trip for the game warden to that part of his big district and consequently high costs. Here is a warning to all who are inclined to break our game laws, and one that should be appreciated by all true sportsmen.

Now, we won't talk about unpleasant anxieties any more, Miles broke in on her thoughts, we will only live an hour at a time, and here come the people who are exactly calculated to help us to do it. Dorothy smiled responsively, as Dick Bevan and Betty appeared round the bend of the terrace, the artist talking in quick, earnest tones, the girl at his side looking up at him with an expression upon her face that made Dorothy catch her breath.

How she loves him, she whispered, and what an ideal pair of lovers they are.

We had to come, Betty exclaimed, as soon as they were within earshot, and leaving Bevan, she came quickly to Dorothy's side, we had to come off at once to tell Sir Miles how glad we are, and to tell you that—that it is only what you both deserve!

Her face was alight with sympathetic joy, she put her arms round Dorothy and kissed her warmly, whilst Bevan shook hands with Miles, saying in his soft, dreamy voice—

And now I shall be able to finish your portrait; if only I could have had you in silver armour, what a much better portrait it would have made!

But then what a fool I should have looked for posterity, Miles answered ruefully, what business has a twentieth century personage to go about, aping a knight of the Round Table?

You shall have the sitting by all means, my dear fellow, but let me wear my brown coat as heretofore.

I am taking the cottage just inside your park gates, if you endorse your agent's consent, Bevan continued; I can't go back to the city of dreadful night, after living amongst orchards and commons and Betty—he paused and looked at the girl's flushed face. Betty is coming to take care of the cottage, and of me!

Mother says, the girl exclaimed, that we shall just be a pair of babies and that if either of us ever get any dinner, or ever do anything like rational beings, she will be very much surprised.

But some day, I mean to develop into a notable housewife. When I am not painting you, Bevan put in, I am going to paint her almost all the time!

And oh, the poor public, said Betty, they will get so tired of the painter's wife, the painter's wife ad nauseam. They will call you a monomaniac. Dick—just a one ideal man, nothing more.

Talking of monomaniacs, reminds me, Bevan said, coming out of the clouds and speaking gravely. I saw the doctor as I came through the village and he told me of something he had just heard about Soames, the lawyer, the man who murdered poor young Tritton.

CHAPTER XXVI A Chance of Life

In Oliver Dynecourt's consulting room, the heavy air of an August morning felt sultry and stale. The windows were opened to their widest, but no refreshing breeze entered the room, only that odor of dust and a used-up atmosphere, so well known to those who are forced to spend August in London. The surgeon, though quite recovered from his recent illness still looked pale and worn, and as he sat writing at his table it was obvious that his work was an effort to him, for he frowned as he wrote, and

SALT RHEUM CAME OUT ON HANDS

Formed Watery Pimples. Itchy and Had Horrible Burning Sensation. Lost Some of Finger Nails. Could Not Open Hands. Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

235 N. Lissar St., Toronto, Ontario.

"For seven years I have been troubled with salt-rheum. It came out on my hands and formed kind of watery pimples all over them which became itchy and it had a horrible burning sensation which caused me a good deal of pain. It came out on my hands in the fall and remained there till after spring. I might mention that I lost some of my finger-nails by the disease. During this length of time I was utterly useless, as I could not open my hands. I tried several other patent medicines without a bit of relief. Some of my friends advised me to try Cuticura Remedies so I sent for samples and by using them there was a great improvement. Then I went to the drugstore and bought one cake of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment after using them I am glad to say I am completely cured. I had given up all hope of being cured. I can say to all those who have suffered as I have, not to lose courage but to give Cuticura Remedies a fair trial." (Signed) Miss Lillian Irwin, Oct. 13, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp that torture, itch, burn, scale, and destroy sleep. W. N. U. 924 there were long pauses in his writing, pauses during which he stared out at the backs of the houses opposite his window, and the strip of hot cloudless sky above the house tops.

A fleeting vision of Mansuete crossed his mind, of Mansuete as he had seen her, on that summer evening, when he had met Dorothy by the wicket gate in the park. The cool breeze that had sung among the tree tops, the flickering sunlight on the green of the grass, the fragrance of wild roses and honeysuckle, all the loveliness of an English June, mingled with his remembrance of the woman he loved, and made that memory more penetratingly sweet.

And one day I shall be master of all that fair domain, was the thought that stirred within him, unless, but there can't be any unless, there shall not be any unless. The last obstacle is out of the way, now that Soames is dead.

With an extraordinary sense of relief he recalled his own sensations on the day now three weeks ago, when they had brought him the tidings of the lawyer's death. He was still in bed in the hospital, still scarcely able to move or to think consecutively, when Sister Clare had come to him, and broken to him gently that the man who had injured him was no more.

How or why he had come there, nobody knew, unless that strange attraction which draws a murderer back to the scene of his crime had drawn this madman back to the place where he had killed Tritton. Nobody would ever know the truth. But Edward Soames had been found—dead—in the very room where Denis Tritton had lain awaiting burial, the room where tender-hearted Betty had brought flowers to put into Tritton's dead hands.

Whether the madman had lurked in the copse, watching his opportunity to enter the cottage, seeing where the old caretaker hid the key when he shut up the house for the night, will never be known. But he was found there in the morning, sunk down in the armchair by the fireplace, dead, so the doctor declared, from exposure and exhaustion.

So there would never be any trial, was Dynecourt's first thought, never any fear now that the man's wandering wife would lead him to blurt out unpleasant and unnecessary truths; no one now need ever know, would ever know, of that bargain struck between the lawyer and the surgeon, of that trafficking with the future, which might have looked so strange if told in a court of law, sounded so strange in the ears of the woman who loved him. There were no more risks now—unless, no, he would not allow that word unless to enter into his calculations at all, there was to be no unless. It was quite unlikely that Miles Hemesley would come to see him, until the possibilities of doing anything for him were gone by for ever, until, in fact, it was too late.

And it was not part of a surgeon's duty to summon a patient to come and see him. The patient must of course come of his own accord, to ask him to do so would be unprofessional, self-advertising, out of the question. His path was certainly opening out before him now, with comfortable smoothness; conscience had been so successfully trampled upon, that its voice was seldom or never uplifted; he could look with complacency towards the future, the golden future when he and Dorothy—

This gentleman wished to see you, sir. The parlourmaid who, doing consulting hours, took charge of the front door, entered the room and put a card into Dynecourt's hand. Sir Miles Hemesley.

The words danced for a moment before the surgeon's eyes, but his voice was quite firm, quite unmoved as he said—

I can see Sir Miles at once. Show him in.

And just as in speaking to the servant his voice had been quite normal, so in rising to greet his patient his manner was quiet and ordinary, betraying nothing of the turmoil that raged within him. As Sir Miles advanced from the doorway and seated himself in the strong light that fell upon the chair Dynecourt pushed forward for him, the surgeon read in his face the marks of all he had endured during the suspense and anxiety following upon Tritton's murder. The grey eyes were a little sunken, there was a drawn look about the mouth, his nostrils were a little pinched, and he bore the appearance of a man who has just risen from a bed of sickness. But the glance in his eyes was as clear and undaunted as before, and there was a smile on his face, as he and Dynecourt shook hands.

I have come to you before the time he said to Dynecourt, who observed as he had observed before, how singularly charming was his voice; you told me you would like to see me in six months, but I have not been feeling quite so fit lately, and my wife wanted me to consult you.

Your wife? The words dropped involuntarily from Dynecourt's lips, and he hoped that his visitor was not aware of the note of surprise in the question. Sir Miles was too intent on his own thoughts to notice the surprise, though he replied to the actual words.

Yes, my wife has been worrying about me. Of course you know we have had a good deal of anxiety lately, and she is afraid it has damaged me. I have come to bother you, principally to please her. I remember you told me that in my case there was nothing to be done. I have not come to you with any raised expectations.

To hear this man speak of Dorothy's anxiety about him, and to hear her named as his wife, was gall and wormwood to Dynecourt, and an almost savage exultation thrilled through him at Hemesley's last words, I have not come to you with any raised expectations.

Well and good. He expected nothing. Why then should he receive anything? He would never know of that case in the hospital ward, that case that ran on lines so parallel to his own, the case in which operation had been so—

Labby and the Brigand

Brigandage in Mexico was a common profession and had its rules. The late Mr. Labouchere was once for some weeks at a sugar plantation near a small provincial town in Mexico. In the town lived a brigand. He was highly esteemed by his neighbors, and, said Mr. Labouchere, I passed many a pleasant evening with him and his family. His daughter was a beauty, and this estimable parent was amassing a little fortune for her.

His habit was to ride at night to the road between Mexico and Vera Cruz with two or three associates, and to levy contributions on the diligence. When I left the town I wanted to strike this road and I went with him and his friends. We reached it at about six in the morning. Having partaken of chocolate, the brigands posted themselves behind some rocks, and I looked on. Soon the diligence was seen approaching. The brigands emerged and the coachman stopped; the passengers were requested to descend, and were politely eased of their money.

The passengers then took their places again in the coach and it drove off, while the brigands courteously bowed to them. So honest were they, in their peculiar way, that they wished me to take my share in the spoil; but this, of course, my standard of morality being different from theirs, I declined. My estimable friends then retired into a neighboring church to give thanks for the success of their enterprise and I wished them goodbye. Riding on to Puebla, I dined at a table d'hôte that evening with the despoiled travellers, and adds Mr. Labouchere, was greatly amused to hear them recount the valorous manner in which they had defended themselves, and how they at last had to succumb to numbers.

In the Soup

Fairly reeking of the salt sea, the two mariners strolled into a cheap restaurant and ordered a dinner. They were captain and mate, ashore after a long trip.

In a few minutes the somewhat grimy waiter appeared, and with an airy flourish, deposited before the sea-dogs two plates of some thin, anemic-looking liquid.

Ahoy, there! barked the skipper, as his eye fell upon the concoction. What in the name of Neptune is this? The waiter bowed gracefully, arranged his napkin in the proper position, and replied, in lordly tones:

Soup, sir.

Then it was that the grizzled captain flew into such fits of laughter that he nearly brought tears to his eyes.

Bill, he cried, giving the mate a mighty nudge, here's news, my lad! Here's you and me these forty years been sailing on soup.

Both Satisfied

A hunter set out one day to hunt, and a panther set out at the same time to eat.

I must have a fur coat, said the hunter.

I, said the panther, must have a dinner.

Some hours later in a lonely wood the panther and the hunter met.

Ah, said the hunter, gallily leveling his gun, here is my fur overcoat.

And he shot, but the panther dodging behind a tree, escaped unhurt.

Then the panther rushed forth before the hunter could reload.

Ah! here's my dinner, said the panther. And he fell upon the hunter and devoured him.

Thus each got what he wanted, the hunter getting his fur overcoat and the panther his dinner.

A Miraculous Escape

A mishap befell a steamboat tripper on the West Coast last summer. In common with others he found much enjoyment in watching the engines at work. There were several doors around and above the engine-room and he was interestedly following the movements of the engineer through one of these when a crowd came suddenly upon the passage, the pressure being so great that the door gave way and he was hurled, as it seemed, into the midst of the moving machinery and lost consciousness.

When he came to on the upper deck he was informed that a moment before he fell the starboard engine had been stopped as the boat was just rounding in, and it was found that he had simply received a few bruises. It was a miraculous escape from what might have been a fearful death.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A banker, an American town, having a bald head, was in the habit of wearing his hat during business hours. Every week a negro workman or the railway presented a cheque for his wages, and one day as he put his money in a greasy wallet the banker said to him:

Look here, Moses, why don't you let some of that money stay in the bank and earn interest for you?

Oh, no, boss, replied the darky, with a glance at the banker's hat. 'Tee jes' afeared. You look like you was always ready to start off somewheres.

NO MEDICINE But Change of Food Gave Final Relief

Most diseases start in the alimentary canal—stomach and bowels. A great deal of our stomach and bowel trouble comes from eating too much starchy and greasy food.

The stomach does not digest any of the starchy food we eat—white bread, pastry, potatoes, oats, etc.—these things are digested in the small intestines and if we eat too much, as most of us do, the organs that should digest this kind of food are over-come by excess of work, so that fermentation, indigestion, and a long train of ailments result.

Too much fat also is hard to digest and this is changed into acids, sour stomach, belching gas, and a bloated, heavy feeling.

In these conditions a change from indigestible foods to Grape-Nuts will work wonders in not only relieving the distress but in building up a strong digestion, clear brain and steady nerves.

A woman writes: "About five years ago I suffered with bad stomach—dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation—caused, I know now, from overeating starchy and greasy food."

"I doctored for two years without any benefit. The doctor told me there was no cure for me. I could not eat anything without suffering severe pain in my back and sides, and I became discouraged."

"A friend recommended Grape-Nuts and I began to use it. In less than two weeks I began to feel better and inside of two months I was a well woman and have been ever since."

"I can eat anything I wish with pleasure. We eat Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast and are very fond of it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Advantages and Saving by Using The Loading Platform

In the writing we desire to put before our Western Farmers the saving and advantage of loading grain direct on cars. Shipping grain through an elevator, it matters not whether a Government elevator or one run by an elevator company or individual owner, does not add the least fraction of a cent to the value of the grain, nor does it give the farmer any better chance of marketing it to advantage than when loaded direct on cars. But loading direct on cars saves bushels, and places the elevator charge, which is usually 13c. per bushel, say $17.50 on a thousand bushel car. The elevator dockage is also saved; this may be worth more or less, depending partly on how dirty the grain is, but mostly on the farmer's ability in holding his own with the elevator man taking it in. On the average the dockage may be considered worth 3c per bushel to the farmer, or say $30 per car of 1,000 bushels. When grain is loaded direct into car over the Loading Platform, the farmer knows for sure that it is his very own grain that will be graded by the inspector, and that he will without doubt receive the full and exact return of his car at whichever terminal elevator it is unloaded; for all grain is unloaded from the cars under government superintendence and weighed by properly qualified government weighmen under the rules and supervision of the Dominion Government Board of Grain Commissioners.

Of course, it makes no difference in our loading of the farmers' grain whether it has been shipped through an elevator or over the Loading Platform, but it can easily be seen from what we have stated above where the farmer's advantage lies, when it saves him around $50 or more on every car he ships.

We continue to act as the farmers' agent in looking after and disposing of carlot shipments of wheat, oats, barley and flax strictly on a commission of 1 cent per bushel. We are not connected with, nor interested in any elevator companies or elevators, either local or terminal; neither are we truck buyers, in fact, we never buy farmers' grain on our own account, but only to handle and dispose of the grain entrusted to us as the agents of those who employ us. Many years' experience, with a wide connection and ample facilities for engaging in this special branch of the grain trade, have given us a reputation of the highest character in it. We make liberal advances on car bills of lading. Write us for shipping instructions and market information. ## DEMOCRATS SWEEP U.S.

WILSON AND MARSHALL ELECTED BY BIG MAJORITY

Governor Wilson, of New Jersey, is Elected President of the United States to succeed Wm. H. Taft, by an Overwhelming Majority—Interest in Great Britain.

New York.—Woodrow Wilson was elected president and Thomas A. Marshall vice-president by an electoral majority which challenged comparison with the year in which Horace M. Greey was defeated by Grant. Until now, that year has always been the standard of comparison for disastrous defeats, but the downfall of the Republican party this year runs it a close second.

The Republican party is wiped off the map. Nearly everywhere Taft ran third, with Roosevelt capturing a large majority of the old Republican votes, and in many states Taft's votes were almost negligible.

New York gave Wilson a plurality over Taft of about 265,000. Wilson's vote in the state was 638,000, Taft's 484,000, and Roosevelt's 419,000.

The Democratic majority in the house of representatives will not be less than 160 and the United States senate will probably be Democratic also. The Democrats swept New York, electing Senator Sulzer governor, with Hughes running second and Straus a poor third.

Not only that but for the first time since the organization of the Republican party the Democrats will get the electoral vote of Maine.

Wilson goes into office with heavy Democratic Congressmen behind him, and assurances are that the next senate will be made up of men of his party, who will be able to force through the measures to which it is pledged.

Wilson carried victory with Democratic Congressmen and Senators; he even carried the following States, all of which were carried by Bryan four years ago: Alabama, Kentucky, Nebraska, Carolina, Arkansas, Louisiana, Nevada, Tennessee, Florida, Maryland, North Carolina, Texas, Georgia, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Virginia.

London.—The chief interest in the American presidential election for England is its relations to the tariff. Tariff reform is one of the leading issues in British politics. The Labor papers hail the Democratic success as a great victory for low tariff which was certain to have an influence in England.

The Daily News says:—That the Democratic party should return to office after fifteen years in the wilderness is nothing. What matters is that it is a regenerated party which has returned, entrusted by the American people with a definite mission and led by a man who has character and intellect to carry the mission through.

The News thinks that Woodrow Wilson's election should stimulate all men of the American universities, which are more national and democratic than the English; to participate in politics, and adds:—

War against protection is an interest common to all peoples, and the world has too long been denied that inspiration, that leading which we have a right to expect from the greatest of all republics.

The Standard says:—The people had grown tired of two sets of office seekers, grouped for the mere purpose of the game of parties and divided by no real questions of principles.

The Standard holds that the Democratic revision will leave duties higher than the tariff reformers in England propose.

The Morning Post says:—The significance of the election lies in the fact that the people were dissatisfied with the Taft administration which was too much controlled by the bosses, but were not ready to accept the advanced Roosevelt programme.

The Express says:—Mr. Wilson's success depends upon the degree to which he can raise enthusiasm for politics in hitherto apathetic quarters. He will not lay violent hands on the tariff.

What emerges most significantly from the election, says the Chronicle, is that the majority of the American people have awakened to keen dissatisfaction with things as they are; that a great forward surge is agitating the mighty mass; that although to some its purposes may be confused, to some its battles still fought in the half light, there is enough will and vitality in the gigantic nation to carry it forward to final victory.

American Immigration to Canada

Ottawa.—An interesting analysis of the American immigration to Canada for the past year has been made by the department of the interior. Sixty-nine per cent of the settlers from the States were naturalized American citizens, while no less than thirty-one per cent had never taken out naturalization papers.

The total immigration from the republic was 133,710 and of these 19,384, or 14 per cent were returned Canadians. One per cent of the other nationalities had not taken out papers as Americans. There were English, 3,660; Scotch, 1,389; Irish, 936; Germans, 32,925; Finns, 23,811; Swedes, 3,707; Norwegians, 1,972.

ON LONG VOYAGE

Steamer Constructed at Collingwood Sails for Victoria, B.C.

Collingwood, Ont.—The new light house steamer, Estevan, which the Collingwood Shipbuilding company have just completed to the order of the Dominion government for service on the Pacific coast, left on a trip of 17,000 miles to Victoria, British Columbia, a voyage that will occupy three months. The Estevan is a steel steamer, constructed along lines specially designed for steamers of her class by the marine experts of the government. Her dimensions are: Length, 210 feet; breadth, 38 feet; and depth 15 feet.

Before her departure the steamer was taken to Owen Sound where trials of speed were made over a measured course. The log showed a speed of 14 knots per hour, two knots more than the contract called for.

The shipbuilding company are under contract to deliver the steamer at Victoria, British Columbia. This necessitates the engagement of two crews, one to take her to Quebec and another to make the ocean voyage down the Atlantic ocean, round Cape Horn and up the Pacific coast to her destination.

From Collingwood to Quebec the steamer will be in charge of Captain Lachlan Morrison, an experienced lake captain and pilot. At the ancient capital, Captain Morrison will turn his charge over to Captain Lindgren, of Victoria, B.C., who in recent years has taken three C.P.R. steamers, the Princesses, from England to Victoria.

TURKS LOSING HOPE

BULGARIANS ARE PURSUING AN ANCIENT ENEMY

The Turkish Army is given no time to recuperate from their recent losses—Constantinople has apparently abandoned all hope and court is ready to cross to Asia.

London.—Bulgaria is giving the broken Turkish army no time to recuperate. In accordance with the tactics adopted throughout the war, Bulgarians are following up the defeated Turkish army with extraordinary energy. Flying columns are pushing along the sea coast towards Tachatalja lines and it is believed that the main attack will be delivered at any time.

Constantinople appears to have lost hope of stemming the victorious advance even at Tachatalja, and the Turkish court is ready to cross into Asia.

Apparently, however, the Bulgarian Government has no aspirations on Constantinople itself and would be ready to conclude peace provided Turkey will agree to surrender Adrianople and some other positions in the western theatre of war and give a guarantee to bring no more reinforcements from Asia.

The Porte shows no disposition as yet to treat for peace direct with the allies, and until the big Tachatalja battle has been fought, the diplomatic situation is not likely to be changed.

What will happen then, it is impossible to foresee, the only thing certain being that the European concert which is not too harmonious will be faced by the most difficult and thorny task of settling the claims of the many aspirants for Turkish territory.

Albania forms the crux of the position. It is stated that an attempt by Serbia to encroach on Albania will be regarded by Austria as a casus belli. On the other hand Serbia declares that a port on the Adriatic is a matter of life and death for her and she fails to see why her presence there should be detrimental to the interests of any other power.

Further, Serbia argues she would only regain what belonged to her before the downfall of the Serbian Empire when Adriatic seaports were flourishing Serbian towns.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Chronicle sends the following:

At any moment the storm may break and involve us in the red ruin of massacre and outrage. Soon Constantinople itself will be surrounded. All the discordant elements of the population, Turks, Armenians, Greeks, Kurds and heterogeneous mass of Europeans will be crushed together into a seething congeries of panic-stricken humanity and all the old hatreds will blaze into scorching flames.

For five hundred years the Turk has loomed it over the infidel. The last hours of that ascendancy, it is feared, may be lived in blood. We had a foretaste of what is to come in the news from Rodosto. Thither came bands of Nazim Pasha's broken force, driven from Lule Burgas by the victorious Bulgarians. Their thin veneer of European civilization vanished like mist in the morning sunlight. A scene of horror followed. The town was given up to massacre, outrage and pillage. It was set on fire in seven places. Children were hurled into the raging flames.

In their agony of fear many tried to get into the open sea in boats, anywhere from these human wolves. In some cases the boatmen were massacred. In others those who trusted to the sea found a merciful death beneath the waves.

The victorious march of the Bulgarian army results in similar scenes wherever the Turks anticipate the coming of the enemy.

The arrival of the foreign cruisers has exasperated the Moslems who consider it evidence that the city will be occupied by foreign troops. The government exercises no moral authority and murders in the Greek and Jewish quarters occur daily.

Conditions in Syria are alarming; Catholics are suffering most. The Governor of Smyrna seems unable to control the people.

Many officers are hiding in Constantinople fearing to go to the front. Everyone is laying in supplies of water. Great alarm has been caused by the report that 25,000 Kurds from Asia Minor are marching on Constantinople.

LORD ROBERTS EXPLAINS

Breaks the Silence He has Maintained Since His War-Like Speech at Manchester

London.—Lord Roberts breaks the silence he has maintained since his famous Manchester speech by a vigorous letter in the Manchester Guardian. He explains he is so much accustomed to adverse criticism in his efforts to arouse the nation to the sense of its unpreparedness for war as not to resent in anyway the attacks of his opponents, but nevertheless, he feels bound to answer what he describes as a complete misconception by the Guardian of the salient passage in his speech. It is true, he says, I pointed out the striking process by which Germany developed from a loose confederacy of petty federated states to a united Empire which arouses the admiration of the world today. But to suggest I am urging upon England that it should be her policy first to arm herself better than Germany and then make war on Germany with or without just cause, or even quarrel simply because England thinks herself at that moment able to win a war, is a suggestion so strange and so repugnant to my mind, that I am utterly at a loss to understand how it could be attributed to me or elicited from my speech. My whole speech was directed, as are all my efforts, to impressing on the fellow countrymen the terrible danger involved in the present situation in which we alone find ourselves. A nation untrained, unprepared and unarmed amid a Europe in which every people, not only the great powers like Russia, Germany and France, but the smaller states, Bulgaria, Serbia, Greece, Norway, Sweden and Denmark stand as armed nations providing Balkan forces, which while it strengthens each one of them physically, makes for peace with honor or for triumph of right.

HOME RULE BILL

Several Amendments Agreed to in British House of Commons

London.—In the proceeding in the house of commons on the home rule bill on clause eleven, providing for a joint session of both houses of the Irish parliament in the event of a disagreement, an amendment was agreed to limiting the operation of the clause to public bills.

An amendment requiring all public bills to be sent to the Irish senate at least one month before the end of the session was also agreed to.

A third amendment to exclude from the operation of the clause any bill affecting the qualification of the Irish parliamentary electors of the right to vote at any parliamentary election, was rejected by 260 to 120.

Sir Harry Samuel moved an amendment to exempt any bill which effected the constitution of either house of Irish parliament or their relationship to each other in the constitution which they are setting up. The new Irish constitution should not suffer as the imperial parliament was now suffering under a weakened upper chamber, he said. The amendment was defeated of 314 to 190.

Expert for Fisheries

Ottawa.—An expert board to advise the marine and fisheries department regarding the fishing industry generally is being considered by the minister. The idea is to have all branches of the fishing industry—deep sea coast and lake and rivers—represented on an advisory board which would meet regularly and deal first hand with questions affecting the fisheries. Legislation along that line is anticipated at the coming session.

London.—Lambeth guardians yesterday decided to prosecute able-bodied paupers who frequently enter and leave the workhouse without attempting to obtain employment on a charge of failing to maintain themselves.

THE MARKET REPORT

Weekly Grain Letter Supplied by Thompson, Sons &amp; Co., Grain Merchants, Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Oct. 30th, 1912.—There has been an almost total absence of bullish influences in the wheat markets in the last seven days, and a steady coming to the front of bearish features, and the result has been an almost daily decline in prices since a week ago. On the one or two days when closing quotations were recorded at higher figures than the close of the preceding day, the advance was only a small fraction, whereas on the days showing lower prices the decline was from 1/2c. to 1c., and the net decline on the week is from 2c. to 3c. per bushel, according to the month of delivery and which market. The decline is natural; the Balkan war is progressing but there have been no alarming reports from it during the week, of the kind to excite the grain markets, and in the absence of the stimulus of war scare reports, and in the presence of large movements of wheat and favorable weather nearly everywhere, prices for wheat have gradually eased down, and the market may be said to have come back to the merchantly position of the new crop. The Balkan trouble will more than likely furnish a few more scares which will advance the markets with sharp spurts, but only the closing of the Dardanelles and the bottling up of the Black Sea wheat for an indefinite time can cause an important advance in prices which would last any time. There is no doubt now that the wheat harvests of the northern hemisphere have this year produced at least 200,000,000 bushels more grain than in 1911 and the increased yield is practically all in the large exporting countries, Russia, the United States and Canada. Besides increased production of wheat in these countries, there is also largely increased production of corn, oats, barley, rye and potatoes. In fact, generally speaking, it has been a season of abundant growth of all farm products, although over some important areas situation in the Chicago market owing to the failure of soft winter wheat crop in the States tributary to Chicago. The principal contract grade of wheat in Chicago is No. 2 Red Winter but this is so small in supply that the cash price of it in Chicago is $1.05 to $1.09 per bushel, while to-day Chicago December wheat, closed at 91c. No. 1 Nor. wheat can be delivered on Chicago contracts at the option price and also No. 2 hard winter. This is causing Chicago traders to turn to Duluth, Minneapolis, Omaha and Kansas City, etc., and procure wheat from these centres to fill their contracts, and it will have the effect of keeping Chicago prices higher than the other markets by at least the amount of the freight per bushel between these markets and Chicago. It will put the Chicago price on an artificial level and that will have some influence in keeping the level of prices up all round. The weekly statistics are altogether on the bear side of the market. The U.S. visible supply increased last week 2,593,000 bushels compared with an increase of only 803,000 bushels of last year. The Canadian visible supply increased 2,850,000 bushels against an increase of only 600,000 bushels last year. The European visible supply increased 3,624,000 bus. against an increase of 1,700,000 bus. a year ago. The world's visible supply, according to Bradstreet's, increased 12,010,000 bushels against an increase of 6,029,000 bushels a year ago. The world's shipments from exporting to importing countries this year from July 1st to date have been 208,744,000 bushels against 177,142,000 bushels, showing an increase this year of 32,602,000 bus. or a little over 2,000,000 bushels per week extra over last year. These statistics are the reverse of the bullish especially when it is remembered that practically all importing countries have good crops of their own this year.

Our Winnipeg market has been active during the week, both in cash wheat and future deliveries, but prices have declined in line with outside markets. Receipts from the west have been heavy but a big demand has been experienced for all grades spot or past Winnipeg in order to provide for the vessels loading at Port William and Port Arthur. An item of interest is the definite announcement that on Nov. 8th freight rate on grain shipped from the three prairie provinces to Duluth will be the same as to Fort William and Port Arthur, but only for grain shipped in bond for export and not for consumption in the United States. The arrangement will help the movement of grain from the west during the winter months. The movement from the west has been very heavy lately, averaging over a thousand cars of wheat per day, and stocks of wheat at Port William and Port Arthur show an increase of 1,354,000 bushels on the week, although the amount shipped away was 4,823,000 bushels. With good weather this large movement will keep up for some weeks yet. Today's cash prices are: 1 Northern, 88 1/2c; 2 Nor., 85 1/2c; 3 Nor., 83 1/2c; No. 4 wheat, 81c; No. 5, 78c; No. 6, 62 1/2c; Feed, 57c. Tough wheat is 4c. under the straight grade. No. 1 Alberta Red Winter, 88 1/2c; No. 2 A.R., 85 1/2c; No. 3 A.R., 83 1/2c. Futures closed October 89 1/2c; Nov., 88 1/2c; Dec., 84 1/2c; Jan., 89 1/2c.

Oats.—The demand for oats has fallen off considerably and supplies have been large. It was feared there might be some congestion in the October option and prices in it have been erratic. To-day there are no quotations for cash oats but nominal values are about No. 2 C.W., 38 1/2c; 3 C.W., 37c; No. 1 Fd., 37c; 2 Fd., 36 1/2c; 2 Fd., 35 1/2c. Futures closed October, 38 1/2c; Nov., 35 1/2c; Dec., 33 1/2c.

Barley.—The barley market is firm and barley is in good demand at No. 3, 57c; No. 4, 52c; Rejected, 48c; Feed, 48c. Flax.—The flax market is quiet and fairly steady with prices rather better than a week ago. Today's cash prices are 1 N.W. Canadian 135c; 2 Can. Western, 131 1/2c; 3 Can. Western, 112c. Futures closed Oct., 135 1/2c; Nov., 134 1/2c; Dec., 128c.

All prices are for delivery in store Fort William, Port Arthur and Duluth.

Swift Current, Sask.—The start made by the engineers department of Swift Current in the matter of paving along Eleventh Avenue is regarded quite generally as marking one more important advance in the town's development. Still another feature of the steady growth of Swift Current, especially in the district conveniently located with reference to the C.P.R. station and the business section, is the opening of the branch of the Bank of Montreal on Eleventh Avenue. As stated by Secretary Wood of the local board of trade: Great was the development of Swift Current in 1910 and 1911, the progress made during the present year has far surpassed anything that has previously been accomplished; our highest expectations have been greatly exceeded.

Swift Current is now a divisional point of the C.P.R., which railway already has two branch lines radiating from this point; and in 1913 it will be a divisional point of the C.N.R. and G.T.P., both of which railways will have two lines running out of Swift Current. Recent statistics of building permits in proportion to population place Swift Current third amongst all the cities and towns in the Dominion. This fact alone should be conclusive as to the activity now taking place. Swift Current is the centre of three million acres of the richest grain growing land in the West; and reference to recent statistics will show that this is the largest initial wheat-shipping point in the world. Swift Current has an assured future.

Facts Demonstrating Growth

London.—The suffragette movement suffered a setback in the house of commons when an amendment providing for woman suffrage, which it was desired to include in the home rule bill for Ireland, was defeated by 341 against 141 votes. The suffragettes declare that they will retaliate by organizing outbreaks in Ireland.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON VII—FOURTH QUARTER, FOR NOV. 17, 1912

Text of this Lesson, Mark viii, 27 to ix, 1.—Memory Verses 36, 37.—Golden Text, Matt. xvi, 16.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson is recorded also in Matt. xvi and Luke ix, and we will consider it with the harmony of the gospels before us. Miracles in his harmony says that this is the first particular prediction concerning the rejection, the death and the resurrection of the Christ and was probably apart from the multitude and is the first key opened to the heaven of the Pharisees. Matthew and Mark say that He has come into the coasts or towns of Caesarea Philippi, and Luke adds that He was alone praying. His disciples being with Him. We shall see in the next lesson that He was praying also at the time of His transfiguration Luke ix, 18, 29. Luke records other instances of His praying in chapters ii, 21; vi, 12; x, 1; xlii, 41; xlii, 34. He ever talked with His Father in heaven with the same realization of His presence as that of the people about Him.

People talked about Him and had their opinions as they have today. The Pharisees who believed in a resurrection thought that He might be John the Baptist or Elijah or Jeremiah or one of the prophets at which no doubt, the Sadducees scoffed, for they did not believe in resurrection or spirit, but the Pharisees confessed both (Acts xxiii, 8). His next question is: on that should lay hold of our hearts. Whom say ye that I am? or as He put it to the Pharisees at another time: What think ye of Christ? (Matt. xxi, 42).

It should not so much concern me what others say, but what does my heart say, what is He to me personally? Simon Peter, generally the spokesman, answered, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God (verse 29; Matt. xvi, 16). See his similar testimony in John vi, 69 and that of Martin in John xi, 27. Can I look upon Him with His eyes as a flame of fire searching me through and through and say, O Lord, thou art to me the risen living Christ, my personal Saviour. If so, then blessed am I for our Father has taught me by His spirit (Matt. xvi, 17). The words translated Peter and rock in Matt. xvi, 18, are not quite the same, the first signifying a piece of rock easily movable, and the other a solid rock immovable. The rock foundation is the great truth that Jesus is God, and other foundation can no man lay (1 Cor. iii, 11; Acts iv, 12).

The church built on this and on His great atonement as God can never be moved. The company of all true believers in Him constitutes this church, and all else must come to naught. Peter was the first to lay the foundation, not of the church, and the church is not the kingdom, but the heavenly realm of it. From that time and repeatedly He began to tell them that at the hands of the elders, chief priests and scribes He must suffer many things, be rejected and killed and after three days rise again (verses 31; ix, 31; x, 33, 34); but although to us seemingly so plain, His disciples did not receive these sayings, not even Peter and John, and it is written concerning them that up to the time of His actual resurrection from the dead they knew not the Scripture that He must rise from the dead (John xx, 9). They had not received the message of the prophets that the Messiah must suffer, die, be buried and rise again, though we can see it plainly in such passages as Ps. xlii; Isa. liii; Dan. ix, 26; Zech. xii, 10; xlii, 6, 7. Peter therefore said that He should not speak of suffering; Be it far from Thee, Lord. This shall not be unto Thee. Pity thyself (Matt. xvi, 22 and margin). Mark our Lord's reply and note that what is not of God is of the devil and is an offense to God.

Believers are either a sweet savor of Christ or salt that has lost its savor. There is no room for self in a disciple of Christ. It must be always a denial of self, taking up the cross daily and following Him; always delivered unto men as Jesus sake, that the life of Jesus may be manifest in us; reckoning ourselves dead unto sin and alive unto God (II Cor. iv, 10, 11; Rom. vi, 11). There is no cross of gold or jet or jewels or flowers seen in Scripture, but only a cruel cross of death.

It means crucified to the world and the world to us, seeing Jesus only. To one life means business to another his profession, to another pleasure, to another this or that great scheme, philanthropic perhaps or just to make money, but one who is right with God says, "To me to live is Christ." He does not ask us to suffer with Him without setting before us the glory of the kingdom to which He has called (I Thess. ii, 12; I Thess. ii, 14; I Pet. v, 10), and to which He refers in verses 38 of our lesson and which we shall see more clearly in next week's study of the transfiguration, and to which the last verse of this lesson (Mark ix, 1) clearly belongs. It was the God of glory who appeared to Abraham (Acts vii, 2), and we can only be sustained in the patient waiting as He and others were. But the church as a whole is as blind to the glory of His kingdom as the disciples were to His death and resurrection, not because it is not plainly revealed but because other thoughts and ways leave no room for His.

An organization, the prime object of which will be to encourage immigration to Minnesota, and to discourage emigration, especially to Canada, was launched in Minneapolis last Friday, when representative business men of St. Paul and Minneapolis formed the nucleus of the Immigration Association of Minnesota. This information is sent out from St. Paul accompanied by a statement sent out by Louis Hill, of the Great Northern, who declared that during the last five months, fully 79,000 people have emigrated to Canada from the United States, taking with them $110,000,000 worth of household goods, machinery. It is really not surprising our Yankee friends are growing jealous of their Canuck cousins.

Ben H. Morgan Talks On municipal Finance

The following reprinted from the Monetary Times, was evidently not written for local consumption or advertisement, but at this time it makes interesting reading:—

Mr. Ben. H. Morgan, one of the best known financial and economic writers in England, and who recently made an extensive tour in Canada, writes a long and interesting article in the Financial News respecting Canadian municipal affairs. After discussing many phases of this particular form of financing, Mr. Morgan concludes:—"There is at present a strong speculative element throughout Canada, and it has invaded even municipal and provincial treasuries. We have known of more than one case in which a municipality has deposited its stock or debentures at the bank and thus secured an overdraft, with which the public business has been conducted until the bank acted as it would by a private customer, and stopped any further advance. Then some of the stock or debentures had to be disposed of by forced sales. This was the inevitable result of the Micawber like policy of securing an overdraft when the British market was dull, in the hope that sooner or later something would turn up. This unsatisfactory state of affairs is partly due, no doubt, to the frequent changes that are usual in provincial administrations in Canada, and also in Municipal councils—a state of affairs that inevitably acts injuriously on the continuity of the municipal policy. But it is also largely due to the fact that scarcely one mayor in all Canada has ever turned to any expert financial adviser."

"Finance, by which we here understand the art of raising capital on the security available to the best advantage of the borrower is an art and science in one. What the rulers of provincial and municipal Canada want and must obtain is expert financial advice; but this cannot be obtained in Canada herself, or at any rate is not available on the prairies. As London is the world's treasury, there are found the financial experts who could advise Canadian provincial or municipal borrowers as to the best terms which might be secured at any given moment. The consolidation of Canadian municipal loans could be readily effected by competent financiers, and would represent a gain to Canada of millions of dollars."

A Conflict of Advice

(From the Strome Despatch)
One wonders indeed where the western farmer would land if he tried to follow the advice which is being gratuitously showered upon him. It will be remembered that during the car shortage of last winter it was pointed out to the farmers that they could not expect the railway companies to move the crop in the space of two or three months. Geo. Bury, general manager of the C. P. R.'s western lines, emphasized this inability of the railways in an official explanation of the car shortage. Mr. Bury advised the farmers to store their grain and went so far as to recommend a particular kind of portable bin.

But this storing of grain by the farmers, is according to the general manager of a Canadian bank, all wrong. In a despatch to The Toronto Globe from its Montreal correspondent, the banker in question is quoted as follows:—"I do not think it would be wise to so amend the bank act that farmers could get loans on their grain before shipping it to the elevators. As the law is at present the farmer must market his grain at once in order to get his money. This is good policy, as it compels the farmer to be prompt in payment of his bills. If he were encouraged to hold his grain and borrow money on it there is no telling when he would sell and meet his obligations. Now he sells his wheat, pays his bills to retail merchants, they in turn pay the wholesaler, and the latter the banks, and the money is thus kept in circulation."

What is the farmer to do? Is he to follow the advice of the railway companies and store his grain or is he to put himself right with the bankers and ship his grain "at once?" Until, at any rate, the railway companies and the bankers have settled the matter in one way or the other, the farmers may be pardoned for acting in the matter of crop shipping as they have acted in the past and suit their own advantage and convenience.

Hockey and Curling

A joint meeting of the Hockey and Curling Executives was held in the Town hall on Wednesday evening, Mr. McKie in the chair. Minutes of previous meetings were read and accepted.

Mr. F. Scott then stated that a large amount of work had been done on the rink and the sum of $103.60 had been expended.

Two propositions were submitted to the Curlers' Executive by Mr. McKie, president of the Hockey club as follows:—

1.—That the Hockey club build the Curling rink and provide a suitable room for the curlers and an account of the money expended be kept and handed to the committee of the curling club and they in return to assist the hockey club in collecting funds for the rink in general, and also to give us a general assistance in building same.

2.—That the hockey club allot the land not used by them to the curling rink as it stands for the purpose of erecting a curling rink as they see fit.

On motion the first proposition was accepted by the curlers.

Meeting then adjourned.
The rink is almost completed and season tickets may be obtained from the secretary at the McKay Hardware Co. The club desires to thank Mr. Larkin for his donation of lumber, and to inform the public that cash donations will be gratefully received.

nothing so rapidly restores health and vigor as SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is the essence of natural body-nourishment, so medically perfect that nature immediately appropriates and distributes it to every organ, every tissue—feeding, nourishing and restoring them to normal activity.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is not a patent medicine, but is nature's body-nourishment with curative, upbuilding properties and without a drop of drug or alcohol. It contains superior cod liver oil, the hypophosphites of lime and soda with glycerine, and is so delicately emulsified that it enters the system without digestive effort—builds, tones and sustains.

After croup, whooping cough, measles and other child ailments it is nature's ally in restoring health.

After grippe or pneumonia it imparts strength and health, and for colds, coughs, sore, tight chests and throat troubles SCOTT'S EMULSION gives the greatest relief known.

Smart

N. P. Willis, the American writer, was usually the life of the company he happened to be in. His repartee at Mrs. Gale's dinner in Washington is famous. Mrs. Gale wrote on a card to her niece at the other end of the table: "Don't flirt so with Nat Willis. Sue herself was talking vivaciously to a Mr. Campbell."

Willis wrote the niece's reply: "Dear aunt, don't attempt my young feelings to 'rammel, nor strain at a Nat while you swallow a Campbell."

A penny each.

And yet you sell them for a half-penny. You can't make much.

No.

Then why do you sell them?

Oh, just to get a fair chance of hollering!

A Point of Honor

No power on earth shall make me do it! The man spoke firmly, but his knees trembled. She approached close to his side. Her eyes blazed into his. You shall do it, she snarled, however much you dread it! You hear me?

I refuse utterly. Such action is unworthy of a man of pride and honor. You refuse? Quickly she was at his side again; and though he drew back from her as from a whip-lash, she gripped him like a vice.

Then she took out a small knife—a thin, sharp-pointed piece of steel. She thrust it into his hand.

There! she exclaimed. His obstinacy was driving her to desperation. Her voice broke with passion. William Tompkins, she cried, unless you obey, and peel those potatoes now—at once—you shall go to bed without any dinner!

Suggestive

An Englishman travelling in California was impressed by a specimen of local humour. He was going down a dangerous mountain road in a coach when he saw these ominous words, branded in black letters upon a white board nailed to a wayside tree: How would you like to have a broken neck and a dirty shirt on? Try the Snowwhite Laundry.

Inquisitive

A small boy was seated in the parlor with his sister's young man. Being of an inquiring turn of mind he asked Mr. Grayson: Do you weigh very much?

About 150 lbs., my little man, the hopeful lover responded.

Do you think sister would lift you?

Oh, goodness, no, said the young man blushing at the mere thought, why do you ask?

I don't believe she can, either, but I heard her 'ell me this morning that she was going to throw you over as soon as she could.

WEAK STOMACH

Need New, Rich Blood to Restore Them to a Healthy Condition

Actually it need of food to nourish the body and yet afraid to eat because of the racking pains that follow. That is the condition of the sufferer from indigestion—a choice between starvation or merciless torture.

The urgent need of all dyspeptics, of everybody whose organs of digestion have become unfit to perform their important duty, is for stronger stomachs that can extract nourishment from food.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give weak stomachs just the strength they need by enriching the blood supply, thus giving tone and strength to the stomach and its nerves, and enabling it to do the work nature intended it to do.

Thousands of cases of indigestion have been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, of which the following is but one instance. Miss L. A. Brown, Port Alberni, Ont., says: "For a number of years I was a terrible sufferer from indigestion and as a result I became completely run down, and suffered from backaches and nervous troubles as well. I had to force myself to eat, but never enjoyed a meal owing to the awful pains that followed eating. Life was becoming a burden, and as medicine after medicine failed to help me I felt I was doomed to go through life a constant sufferer. Finally a married sister strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be thankful that I followed her advice, as they have fully restored my health, and I can now enjoy all kinds of food without the least discomfort and my friends say I am looking better than I have done for years."

At all events I know I feel like a new person, so shall always praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Wigwag—I never knew such a fellow as Jones. He is always looking for trouble.

For Sprains and Bruises.—There is nothing better for sprains and contusions than Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It will reduce the swelling that follows a sprain, will cool the inflamed flesh and draw the pain as if by magic. It will take the ache out of a bruise and prevent the flesh from discoloring. It seems as if there was magic in it, so speedily does the injury disappear under treatment.

Who was that seedy individual I saw you give half a crown to?

An old literary friend of mine; author of "Ten Thousand Ways of Making Money."

Minard's Liniment Cures Colds, &c.

This Cordial can be given with safety to the smallest child, as there is no injurious substance in it.

It was loose—very loose. She had no sooner mounted than the saddle slipped, and if I hadn't caught her she would have been thrown to the ground.

I'm very sorry, sir.

But I did catch her, went on the young man, meditatively. I caught her in my arms, and—here's half a crown for you, John. Do you suppose you could leave the girl loose when we go riding again to-morrow.

It is estimated that $5,000,000 a year is spent in wages to professional foot-ballers.

Bride Training

To those who take their wifely duties just as a matter of course it may come as a great surprise to know that there exist academies solely devoted to the training of brides-to-be.

This is the case, however, and such an institution is St. Martha's College of Housecraft, which is situated in Chichester Street, St. George's Square S.W. Under its accommodating roof future brides are taught what to, and what not to do. For the assumption is long since dead that a girl must necessarily be born a perfect wife and mother. Every experienced housewife, although never, perhaps having been through a course of hygiene or domestic science knows full well how many and hard were the lessons she had to learn before she became the perfect home product.

It should of course be within the means of every woman to go through a proper domestic training, and possibly in the near future better facilities may be afforded for poor women, as well as rich, to train as wives.

Meanwhile, at the bride's school in Chichester Street the girls are taught the entire art of managing a house, from making beds to cooking evening dinners. For it is one of the principal's theories that even should a girl in after life be fortunate enough to keep her two or three servants and footman, her early knowledge must always prove useful.

For servants need managing, as well as training, and the young wife often finds the former the more difficult of the two. Either she is too lenient and indulgent, or she is haughty and overbearing. She is taught the happy medium at St. Martha's College.

Life there is none too easy. The laundry students, for example, rise at 7.30 the house student at 6 and the cook on Fridays (the day for flues), at 5.30. The remaining girls not acting in the above capacities rise at 6 in the summer and strip their beds and open windows.

A cup of tea is then taken, after which the real work of the day begins. The girls lay and light fires filling coal scuttles, sweeping and dusting rooms, brushing down the steps, and polishing the door-brasses.

Then follows 8 o'clock breakfast which is prepared by the cook on duty. Such tasks as washing up, cleaning silver, turning out rooms, and cooking, for everyone lasts till 1 o'clock, the luncheon hour.

The course is a six months' one and each girl studies a week in each branch of the work. Becoming uniforms of brown linen, white aprons, mob caps and sleeves are worn in this particular establishment.

Shopping expeditions are also the rule of the house and lectures and practical classes are given on such subjects as sewing, darning, patching, mending, upholstery, cooking and the laws of hygiene in the afternoons.

The great idea of the whole system of the institution is that housewifery is a science to be tackled in a scientific way. As Miss Feddon, the principal, herself puts it, the perfect housewife should attack her work scientifically, and so get it done better and quicker than one lacking method and training. She would then have time to interest herself in other matters.

Which is eminently true, as every housewife, whether controlling a large or small house, will readily admit.

Don't Get Injured

I've been thinking of it ever since I started on my present journey, said the commercial traveller thoughtfully, and I'm bothered if I can make up my mind just what she was aiming at. You see, some time ago I realised that travelling about the country as I am I was taking a good many chances. I decided, therefore, to insure myself.

So I said to my wife, after I had acted upon the thought, I have done something today that I should have done when I first started on the road. I have taken out an accident insurance policy on my life. If I am killed, the company pay a thousand pounds. If I am injured, then I get a pound a week.

For how long? she asked.

As long as I am laid up.

But it might be only a week.

Yes.

And you would only get a sovereign.

That is all.

And if you get killed you get a thousand pounds?

You would, I answered patiently.

Well, the next morning, when I started on my journey she threw her arms round me and cried—

Now, John, for heaven's sake whatever you do, don't get injured.

Levelling it up

The proprietor of the big shop on the corner was a chemist, flourishing withal and keenly business-like. He was at the post of duty midway between the red and green vials when the fierce-looking lady entered his premises, but he rubbed his hands and greeted her cordially.

Good-evening, madam, he whinnied, in his high-pitched voice. And what may I have the great pleasure of doing for you?

The fearsome lady placed her arms akimbo, and faced him angrily.

The other night, she said, in sentimental tones, you sold my husband a bottle of tonic, and he came home and went for me like anything. What yer goin' to do about it?

For a brief moment the man of medicine was nonplussed, but only for a moment. Then he turned on his mightiest customer his sweetest smile, and suavely remarked:

Well, madam, buy two bottles for yourself, and then go home and get even with him!

Tommy had been promoted by the chemist. He was now allowed to serve behind the counter.

One morning a middle-aged lady, looking her full age, came in.

Have you got any cream for restoring the complexion? she asked bashfully.

Tommy was a wise lad. He eyed her too-vivid cheeks wit' hopen admiration.

Pardon me, madam, he said politely. Don't you mean cream for preserving the complexion?

And the delighted lady bought six boxes right away.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Why Edna Was Proud of Her Cut Hand

JACK and Evelyn had been particularly good that day and daddy said he felt sure it would not harm them to hear about the prank of Edna, a little girl who is a trifle mischievous, but who always means very well.

"Edna and her little sisters, Florie and Mimi, live in a nice country place. All day they play outdoors in the big garden."

"One morning not long ago Edna felt very hungry indeed. She had been racing about with her puppy and her kitten, and she asked her mother to give her a very large piece of bread and butter with jelly on it. The little girl went into the kitchen and watched as the bread was brought out of the pantry and spread with nice yellow butter."

"Oh, my, how nice it looked! When her mamma took down a glass of nice pink jelly Edna was so pleased that she clipped her little hands with glee."

"When she was given the piece of bread and jelly Edna went out into the garden and sat down in her little chair beside the rose bush."

"As soon as they saw she had something good to eat Pupple and Kittle came meowing so coaxingly that Edna fed, now one, now the other, a bit of bread and jelly."

"Soon it was all gone, and still Edna was hungry."

"Want more bread and jelly," Edna said, but her mother was talking to a lady at the gate, and the little girl knew that she must wait until the chat was over."

"The little girl, followed by her pets, strolled back to the kitchen door."

"She could see the bread and the glass of jelly on the kitchen table."

"There was the big bread knife right beside the bread."

"Edna opened the screen door and went into the kitchen."

"Get bread mine ownself," she said, and picked up the knife. She climbed upon a chair to reach the bread, and then something happened. The chair tipped over so that the knife cut Edna's hand. Dear, how she screamed! Pupple barked in alarm and Kittle ran to hide in a dark corner as Edna's mamma came running in to see what was the matter."

"She soon tidied up the wounded hand, which hurt so much that Edna did not mind the scolding which her mother gave her for taking down the knife."

"In a day or so the cut had healed, but Edna thinks the muslin bandages look nice, and is so proud of them that she won't have them taken off."

"Florie, Edna's older sister, says they might just as well stay on, and then they will be handy when Edna gets hurt again, as she does so often."

Deep in Thought

Interested Lady—Oh, dear, look! That's Mr. Rhymmer, the celebrated poet. See how his finger touches his lip and how his lofty brow is knit in thought. Oh, I wonder what sweet morsel of verse he is meditating?

Mr. Rhymmer (to himself)—I have to order sugar from the grocer's, beef at the butcher's, pay for last week's bread, and bring some soothing syrup for the baby. I wish to goodness Mary would attend to all these things herself!

The Wise Man and the Fool

Once, in travelling, Dr. Bledso was exceedingly annoyed by a pedantic bore who forced himself upon him and made a great parade of his learning. The doctor bore it as long as he could and at length, looking at him gravely, said—

My friend, you and I know all that is to be known.

How is that? said the man, pleased with what he thought a complimentary association.

Why, said the doctor, you know everything except that you are a fool, and I know that.

CORRESPONDENCE

Ranchers Commission

Editor Bow Valley Call:

Dear Sir:—The Ranching and Grazing Commission will meet in Gleichen on the 20th instant to enquire into the grievances of live-stockmen, and to try if possible, to save the remnants of the cattle-breeding industry by acceding to the very modest demands of the few remaining stockmen to induce them to quit the wholesale slaughter business, which the two-year cancellation clause in their lease has forced them to adopt.

The primary causes of the enquiry are: The price of beef and the fact that the up-to-date farmer is just realizing how necessary and profitable stockers are to him in the winter, and also how impracticable it is for him to raise them during the summer months.

In no part of the west has this fact been so fully demonstrated as in this locality, where farming has reached an advanced stage.

The graziers fall beef is never finished and there is an average profit of at least $25 per head to be made by the farmer by carrying them over to spring on his waste product.

When the enormous amount of range and beef cattle shipped locally is considered it is easy to see what the farmer is losing.

The trouble is that each year the range herds are getting less and in a few years will be practically extinct. In the meantime the farmers' ability and desire to feed is increasing.

Would it not be well in a matter so directly advantageous to their industry that the local branch of the Farmers' Union should take the matter up and try by every means in their power to assist the commissioners in their efforts to encourage the breeding industry?

It is immaterial to the grazer which branch of his industry he follows. In fact at present prices he finds slaughtering is far more profitable to him than breeding.

Sincerely yours,

MIXED FARMER.

Cannot be Present

By request the following letter is published in answer to the Bachelors' invitation sent Harold W. Riley, M.P.P. for the Gleichen Riding, by the Honorary-Secretary:

"Dear Sir:—I desire to acknowledge with very great appreciation your kind invitation to be present at the annual Gleichen Bachelors' Ball to be held on Friday evening the 15th inst. and at the same time to say how very sorry I am at my inability to be present. It was my privilege to be present at last year's function and I shall not soon forget the very enjoyable evening I spent as the guest of the bachelors of Gleichen. Sometime ago I accepted an invitation to be present at a Town Planning Convention to be held in Edmonton on the 15th and 16th inst. and previous to the receipt of your invitation, I had arranged to leave here on the evening of the 14th to be present at that convention. You will therefore see that under the circumstances it is quite impossible for me to be with you Friday night. I wish however you would convey to your committee my sincere thanks for their invitation and express to them my hope that the evening may be a most pleasant one for all. With kind regards and best wishes.

It will be remembered that Buckner's colored Male Octette played in Gleichen about a year ago to a crowded house, who were much pleased with the performance. They appear again in the Opera House on Monday, Nov. 25th, and should have a crowded house, not only because of their former splendid performance, but also because of the stamp of excellence "Management of J. Cosgrove".

The Local Editor

The editor of the CALL is often unjustly censured for his mistakes. The wonder is that he does not make more of them. On the average paper he must deal with a kind of subjects, give the names, dates, etc. One hour he may be engaged in reporting a religious meeting and the next drawing the picture of a fight. He must condense and fill with items several columns, whether events are transpiring to throw up material for his use or not. Count the local items in a paper and imagine how many steps they have required, how much mental anxiety, worry and work they have cost and some idea of the editors work can be gathered. The smallest may have cost him a long walk and much effort to reach the facts. There is no end to his work. When one paper goes to press he turns his attention to the next one. He makes the rounds in search of news and may not get a line. From some he must get news without their knowing it, drawing them into conversation and obtaining what he wants in sections. He may labor for hours in chasing down a rumor only to find that there is nothing in it. His local columns stare him in the face and demand to be filled not with skim milk but with the cream of the news events and matters of interest. His bounds are limited and yet he must find in each day and all through the week, month and year something of interest to the public. No more perfect treadmill could be devised. With such a constant strain, producing weariness of the body and mind and an almost endless variety of subjects to be touched upon, is it surprising that he should occasionally make a mistake? Other people do, why shouldn't an editor?

Little courtesies are wayside flowers of life.

There is more religion in a whistle than a whine.

Loyalty to one truth involves hospitality to all.
